

What is my happy place?

→ Close your eyes and feel this every moment. Let it heal you!

It covers all the important points in your bucket list.

You are in Iceland. There is a beautiful mountain and through the edge, you can see a pool of water. Sun rays bouncing over bits of glaciers, giving a hint of blue to the white snow. On the opposite side, there is a sharp cliff with beautifully segmented vertical bamboo-like rocks. Just like this....

You are wearing your favourite winter clothing – a beanie, a jacket pulled over a cardigan, scarf, snow boots, a pair of mittens and are set to build a tent near the edge. Once, you finish building the tent, you go and fetch for some firewood, before it starts getting dark. You bring them back to your tent, and pile them up to set it on fire. You place your arm chair in front of your tent, with the campfire lit beside you, and finally gasp in your breath. You put on your headphones and play your favourite playlist! (No song interruptions, because you have got Spotify premium ><). You just close your eyes for a moment, and no thoughts flow into your mind, which strangely remains unnoticed.

You open your eyes to see the sun gazing onto your eyes through the clouds. As it starts setting down, the colour of the sky changes to a beautiful sunset gradient fill. The sun hides behind a few clouds again, and you can see the light scattering all around. You set the tripod stand for your DSLR camera, make the specifications to capture the moment, and start recording a timelapse of the sky. You just don't want to be distracted by anything else, so you stop playing the songs, and enjoy the silent, peaceful moment!

Finally, the sun sets and brightness starts fading away as the night falls. You see pecks of lights (stars) in the dusk background. You have never seen so many stars on nightfall, and it totally amazes you. You see the crescent moon hovering over your head so clear, that you can make out its craters! You decide to take a closer look and stand on the edge of the cliff. You look down upon at the pool of water, just to surprise yourself with the presence of sparkling water. Later on you realise that it's the bioluminescence water, and you build up a story of you playing with the water and swimming in it. It totally felt like the stars had fallen and were flowing in that pool of water.

Next, you decide to take out the sheets, lay it on the ground and just lie beneath the ocean of dispersed stars in the sky. You fold your arms to form a pillow beneath your head. For a moment, your eyes close in the awe of everything going around you. The next moment you open your eyes, you are taken away by the northern lights in the sky. THE MOST AWAITED DREAM COME TRUE! Everything that you wished for coming true at one place. You tear up, those happy tears running down your cheeks, making you blush. Those stunning green lights dancing above you like butterfly wings. You couldn't wish for more. Your life is contained. You have fulfilled the purpose of your life. And you can surely rejoice this moment over and over again, because you forgot to turn off the timelapse! But it was worth the memory of storage. You can now turn off your DSLR ><